Program Descriptions

Welcome and History of Woodstock – Bruce Davis '73 and Ashoke Chatterjee '51

Ashoke Chatterjee '51 and Distinguished Alumni, WOSA/ASIA Member, WOSA/INDIA Council Member will talk about the history of Woodstock intertwined with the history of India.

Moderator: Bruce David '73 and FWS President

The Brown and The Gold: Woodstock's Sporting Life – Sharon Seto '79

Hosts: Jamie Alter '99 and Suheil Tandon '06

For so many of us, sports were an important part of our Woodstock experience and beyond. Cross-country on Tehri Road, playing cricket and football on Hanson Field, basketball in the Gym, Sports Day, the Olympics, and so much more... We will explore how Woodstock's sports program has changed over time and then talk with some alumni who are working in the sports field. They will share what they are currently doing and how being at Woodstock shaped their journey. We will also look into the future - What might sport at Woodstock look like moving forward?

Sound of the Mountains: A Live Concert – Priyanka Das '13

Music, like the mountains, is timeless. And music, like the mountains, is an integral part of the Woodstock experience. Some of the school's most talented musicians have come together to put on a live concert for their fellow Woodstockers. They will also share stories of the inspiration behind their music, as well as the role that Woodstock played in their musical journey.

Moderator: Priyanka Das '13

Confirmed: Aditya Manral (Staff), Rohan Kumar '14 & band Tentative: Liang Yun Cheng '13, Aditi Saigal '16, TBD

Artist Affinity Group – Sharon Seto '79, Aditya Manral, Staff

Alumni Artists in Residence Program May 2022

Participants in the May 2022 Artists in Residency at Woodstock School will reflect on their recent residency at Woodstock and their experiences of returning to the school. This will be followed by a lobby for artists, facilitated by Chris Green '90.

Panel: Stefan Eicher '90, Isaac Gergan '06, Chris Green '90

Best Pranks – Sue Crain Lewis '82

Followed by an open lobby discussion.

Moderator: Sue Crain Lewis '82

Woodstock's Inspiring Location: Learning from our Environment – Sharon Seto '79

Landour and Mussoorie Environment: Past, Present, and Future. Environmental issues, Woodstock initiatives, and human impacts over the decades.

Moderator: Sharon Seto '79

Panel: Darab Nagarwalla '80, Steve Alter '74, Suzanne Hanifl '63

Woodstock: Today and Tomorrow – Bruce Davis '73

Moderators: Bruce Davis '73, Glenn Conrad '68

Guest: Dr. Craig Cook, Woodstock Principal

Dorm Life: Forged in the Foothills – Priyanka Das '13

From Ridgewood to Hostel and Alteridge to Midlands, Woodstock's dorms have been home to generations of Woodstockers. Lifelong friendships are forged here, and for many, dorms are where extended families are found. No matter where we go, students and dorm parents alike carry fond memories of adventures shared among friends.

Moderator: Rohan Kumar '14

Panel: 5–8 students/dorm parents

Writing Workshop: Sparking Memory to write our Story – Mary Girard '76

An hour writing our memories workshop. Over our virtual time together this weekend many memories have been generated, some of you wish you could write them down. This workshop will give you tools for writing memories and forgotten stories. Others of you are writing or want to write your memoir or your family's memoir. Since I self-published a biography of my great great grandfather (Among the Original Dwellers, 2019 Lulu), several Woodstock alumni have asked me how I wrote this, my first book. [This ancestor was the first to connect our family to India. My father was the 5th generation missionary in India and 4th generation born in India]

Some of our memories are so similar. If someone from the 50s is telling a story of being a “badmash” it resonates in the hearts and minds of those who were at Woodstock in the 90s. The place itself generates some common emotions. But some of us are afraid to share memories with the group because it might be completely opposite from others. We must remember that life experiences are filled with both trauma and happiness and every shade of color in between. I personally find it very helpful to know that an experience or place I found absolutely blissful was a nightmare for someone else. But others want to look at the experience only as a tragedy or as a fairy tale. I would invite us to welcome all kinds of stories coming out of the experience at Woodstock and hope that this workshop will encourage you to at least write your story and perhaps even share it.

I will say a little bit more about the power of story in our individual lives and our collective community which is Woodstock by writing just a small snapshot/memory.

10 minute introduction.

15 minutes: Jog the memory participants list. Places - Values - Objects - Emotions of our Woodstock Community.

15 minutes: Jot down the memory of each individual (this may not be enough time but it is enough for you to get something started later).

15 minutes: Jump in and share a sentence or thought that you liked about what you wrote.

5 minutes to close up: Can keep this session open if people want to share or explore more together.
